

[STREET SEEN]

Cocktail Party

COCKTAIL RINGS were all the rage in the 1940s and '50s. During Prohibition, they were worn to parties to flaunt the fact that the wearer was drinking (hence their name)—and doing so with style.

Trendy Aspenites have taken to showing off these big dazzlers, which are a great way to make a style statement and get noticed. Cocktail rings look best when matched to the tone of your outfit. On the middle or index finger of the right hand, they'll complement your skin and make your fingers look long and slender.

—Andrea Maria Sims